

Art College Application Essay Examples

I have been passionate about the Arts ever since I was a young child. I remember going to the park with my parents, siblings, and cousins and being mesmerized by the colors of nature and our surroundings. Even at a young age, I knew that I wanted to create artwork that could showcase these beautiful images and colors to others. As I grew older, my artistic pursuits expanded beyond just painting; now my canvas is much larger than paper. From clay sculptures to music production, there is no art form that doesn't interest me or capture my attention in some way. One of my earliest memories is when my older sister brought home her first sculpture from school. It was made out of clay and was shaped like a bird with its wings spread outwards in flight. Seeing how she created something so beautiful from something as simple as clay inspired me to pursue a career in Art more seriously.

As I went through middle school and high school, I began taking classes at an art museum near our home every summer. The classes varied from basic drawing and painting classes to more advanced sculpting classes taught by professional artists who had years of experience in their craft. My teachers provided me with constructive feedback on each project I undertook, which helped grow my skills immensely over those few summers alone. After high school, I enrolled in several college courses related to the Arts such as graphic design and digital media production but did not complete them due to financial constraints. When it came time for me to decide what type of profession I would pursue after graduation, it was a no-brainer decision: Art!
